Ready to work on common interests

GREENWICH Council will work with the new government and already recognises areas where there are "common views" - but it will defend Greenwich's interests when it has to.

This was the main thrust of council leader Chris Roberts' speech at the inauguration of the new Mayor of Greenwich, Cllr Barbara Barwick, in the Painted Hall of the Old Royal Naval College last week.

The government's scrutiny of public spending at all levels ties in with the council's ongoing work to provide strong financial management across the board. Concern over the Cutty Sark - following the new government's freeze on all grants awarded since January 1 - and Crossrail still coming to Woolwich, remain the council's top priorities.

"It is unthinkable that the Cutty Sark could be left unfinished and I hope that once we can sit down with the new government we can impress on them the strength of the Greenwich case," said Cllr Roberts.

He also took the opportunity to pay tribute to Peter King, the council's long-time opposition leader who stood down this year after 32 years' service. "If he will accept the honour, Greenwich Council will offer to bestow the Freedom of the Borough upon him," said Cllr Roberts.

In my opinion

Let's all big it up for Eltham

WHAT a beautiful place Eltham is with so much going on, from the Townswomen's Guild, two WI's, the Choral Society, the Eltham Society, to thriving local arts clubs and all the goodies at the Eltham Centre. And there's acres of green spaces to play golf, rugby or football or just have a quiet picnic with the family. Eltham has truly got it all. For a relative newcomer, discovering Eltham is a joy although it seems to relish keeping its attractions a secret. The economy may be in recession - or not - but the future for Eltham looks very positive. Few places have a more interesting and celebrity populated history - from Henry VIII to Bob Hope and Boy George. And none of it is forgotten. There are societies dedicated to Edith Nesbit and local history, as well as a thriving local theatre. What Eltham falls down on is sufficiently celebrating its rich cultural history, and the talent that here right now. At the Tudor Barn we are making a small contribution by putting on a Summer Arts Festival to promote local creative talent. If you want to experience it, join us over the weekend of June 25-26-27. We are starting off with a wine tasting special on the 24th, followed by 'Love Stories', a jazz and poetry night on the evening of the 25th (guests include jazz diva Gill Manly, actor Rupert Baker and BBC broadcaster Jumoke Fashola. Tickets are £20 and profits will go towards the costs of the weekend's Art Festival. Local artists will be giving demonstrations and holding workshops in the Tudor Barn and the Well Hall Pleasance and there will be plenty of hands-on activity for the very young. There will be dance, music and much much more. When Eltham works together we can go through adversity to the stars, so a big thank you to the Friends of Well Hall Pleasance, Greenwich Council and Berkeley Homes for sponsorship and most of all to the people of Eltham, who are such an inspiration.

Creek hosts Seabourn super yacht

LONG-time dreams of turning Greenwich Reach into an international cruise liner turn-around came a step closer at the weekend. The deep waters at the mouth of Deptford Creek played host to an ultra-luxury yacht, the Seabourn Sojourn, and, on Sunday, it set off on its maiden voyage from there. It was carrying 450 passengers off on the first of its 12 to 14-day summer-season trips which will take in the Baltic, Scandinavia, Russia, the Norwegian Fjords and Scotland. Greenwich Time was invited aboard on Friday (June 4) to meet the captain and the owners. Greenwich Council leader Chris Roberts said: "With its wealth of historical maritime connections and excellent transport links to Europe and international destinations, Greenwich is a fitting location for the Yachts of Seabourn to launch its new ship. "In Greenwich we are working to secure berths for two international cruise liner terminals so that we can welcome more international visitors to our borough, particularly during the Olympics. "We hope Greenwich will be a regular destination for Seabourn Sojourn - and wish all those who sail on her a safe journey." ● SUPERMODEL Twiggy officially named the new vessel at a glittering on-board ceremony at dusk on Friday, followed by a firework display. On Saturday, Seabourn made the yacht available to the non-profit organisation, Breast Cancer Haven, for a gala fundraising event to celebrate the charity's 10th anniversary.

WATER TREAT: Paralympic gold medallist Ellie Simmonds (centre) joins in the splashing time in the mobile pool at Willow Dene

It's wonder-pool!

Mobile marvel a boon to school and community

by Pat Greenwood

A SWIMMING pool that can be moved across London and filled up as required has landed at a Greenwich special school for the whole community to enjoy.

The portable marvel, complete with hoists to help with a wide range of disabilities, will be in the playground at Willow Dene, Swingate Lane, Plumstead, until the end of term.

Greenwich is the first borough to make the pool fully accessible for all - and, before the end of the project, the hope is that 5,000 people will be able to swim 25 metres.

The 12x6 metre heated pool is part of a scheme called 'Make a Splash', backed by the Mayor of London. It is made from galvanized steel and is suspended from the ground by a special framework and enclosed by a large marquee.

It is open to the local community for swimming lessons in the evening and at weekends. Paralympic gold medallist Ellie Simmonds (below) visited last week with her mum, Val. She told GT: "This is a really great opportunity to try out the sport."

The 15-year-old, who does 18 hours training a week in addition to studying for her GCSEs, had just set a new world record at the Paralympic World Cup in Manchester on Bank Holiday Monday. She said: "It's a once in a lifetime opportunity to be able to compete in the Paralympics in your home country."

Willow Dene headteacher Louise Carlyle said: "I think it's really significant that the pool has been put in a special school so that children who don't find it as easy to access mainstream facilities can benefit from this project. We are working hard to make sure there is access for all, taking down any barriers."

Louise added: "This project is about preparing for London 2012 and that's why it is so good that here in Greenwich we are making sure the kids with the most complex needs have access to facilities where they can learn to swim and be more active, because the Games are about legacy, a legacy for all."

Louise told GT: "Swimming really enables our children to develop their physical skills and water confidence. In the few weeks we've had this pool, we've seen real progress. We're seeing children putting their faces in the water where they hadn't been confident to do it before."

Cllr John Fahy, Greenwich Council's cabinet member for culture and Olympics, said: "We've seen today how much the children enjoy having the pool here. This is a fantastic opportunity for people to learn to swim in a smaller pool specifically used for beginners."

The 'Make a Splash' scheme is being run in partnership with The Variety Club children's charity, flexible space experts MWB Business Exchange, the Amateur Swimming Association, Total Swimming and London Swimming.

● A SIX-WEEK swimming course started at the mobile pool yesterday, Monday, June 7. For more information and to book phone 07810 447145, email mobilepooladmin@swimming.org or visit the pool at Willow Dene School, Swingate Lane, Plumstead, SE18 2JD

Cafe where they all speak same language

LINKED TOGETHER: cafe regulars and minister the Rev. 'Robbie' Riddell

by Peter Cordwell

WHEN English is not your first language, it's not easy to get to know others and make friends - even if you share common interests.

Wendy Young, teacher of ESOL (English as a Second Language) decided to do something about it by launching the English Language Cafe at Eltham Park Methodist Church.

The difference has been amazing just by providing a friendly, informal meeting place where people can improve their English in a sociable way.

Wendy told GT: "Being an ESOL teacher at Greenwich Community College brings you face-to-face with people longing to do more living in their life."

"Most of all they want to experience life beyond the classroom and perhaps make new friends on the way.

"The English Language Cafe offers that opportunity. It was launched in September last year and we've had wonderful support from a number of people. Most important is the welcoming atmosphere because, without it, it's so easy for people to stay away."

"We've also learned how to dance Ecuadorian style, tested our ballet moves, enjoyed a feast of Iranian food and even organised and served the refreshments at the church's flower club meeting."

Recently the regulars created a piece of artwork with Goldsmith's College students for the Community Day held at the church. "Sometimes we just chat about whatever comes up!" said Wendy. "We share ideas on certain issues like parenting and getting work. It's all in the true cafe style with a hot drink and cakes and biscuits!"

Ari, one of the regulars, told GT: "I come to increase my vocabulary and my language. It's nice to have a chat and get to know other people."

Daryoush said: "The cafe is very good for me because I can learn more English and I can find some new friends."

Asta added: "I am happy to face circumstances that force me to improve my skills and I am lucky I meet people who want me to succeed. People from different cultures socialise and learn from each other at the English cafe and that warm flavour of the English coffee lures me to come back every Wednesday."

● If you want to visit the English Language Cafe, it is at the church in Westmount Road, Eltham, and is open Wednesdays (1.30-3pm) until June 30. The B16 bus stops outside and 161 and 122 nearby

'Crossrail absolutely vital'

of the SE London Chamber of Commerce, attended the inauguration. He told GT: "The emphasis has to be to take the borough forward and not be confrontational

- but it would be ludicrous not to carry on with work on the Cutty Sark and Greenwich Pier with the Olympics two years away. "I would hope the government will see this as well because it's all part of the aim of making 2012 an outstandingsuccess." The chamber is also fully behind having Crossrail at Woolwich. Steve said: "Crossrail is vital. We have fought the battle so many times and we'll fight it again if we have to. We must retain the fresh enthusiasm locally."

'Vision' is horrific to me

AM I alone in thinking the 'Kidbrooke Vision' shown in GT is less of a dream and more of a nightmare? The artist's impression of the new homes planned to replace the Ferrier Estate is just horrific. Who wants to live in a house that seriously looks like some kind of dispenser? This is a world-known borough and yet they choose to replace an undoubtedly poorly designed/dated estate (Ferrier and surrounding area) with something equally horrible. The artist's impression may make it look as presentable as it can be (that's the purpose of it) but I guarantee that within 18 months people will wonder why on earth it was given the green light (I wonder already). With the same amount of building supplies they could build properties that would be sought after and from a design perspective timeless in their appeal.

Can't someone stop the borough turning into a soulless lego-type place to live??

S. Stedman, Shooters Hill
● GREENWICH Council replies that the Kidbrooke Vision Masterplan was subject to lengthy consultation, including a number of public exhibitions. The designs were supported by the Government's Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment, who strongly commended the design of the first phase of homes while advising that the overall scheme has the potential to be an exemplar of a sustainable suburb. The first homes are currently on site and will be completed in early summer.

A football-free pub, lads?

WE spend ten months seeing pubs advertising football on big screens and look upon June as the football-free month. But no, every four years we have the World Cup. Apart from a blip in 1966, England always fail miserably. I don't mind and I don't care, but can someone please tell me about a pub anywhere in Greenwich that WON'T be showing the football?

SPECIAL INDEED

I WAS very impressed with the report and pictures from the 'Special World Cup' event in the June 1 GT. People talked of how it was good for the young people's self esteem and I'm sure it is. But what struck me from the pictures was how much the children actually enjoyed it! Long may do so as well.

Days out worth talking about.

Barbara first among equals

by Dick
 Townsend-Smith

THE new Mayor of Greenwich, Cllr Barbara Barwick, has been telling GT about her ambitions and hopes for her year in office.

Cllr Barwick was officially installed in an historic ceremony held at the Old Royal Naval College on May 26, succeeding Cllr Allan McCarthy. Cllr Jim Gillman became the new Deputy Mayor while Cllr Barwick's husband, Fred, will accompany her on official duties as the Mayor's Consort.

"We have some exciting and important months ahead," said the new Mayor. "This year will see our role as a host borough for the 2012 Olympics and Paralympics develop, and the excitement will start building up."

She also looks forward to strengthening links with the army in readiness for the arrival next year of two new battalions at Woolwich - the 2nd Battalion The Princess of Wales Royal Regiment, and the King's Troop Royal Horse Artillery.

"This will be a great opportunity to reaffirm the borough's close relationship with the army, and I know we will provide a very warm welcome to our new residents," said Cllr Barwick.

New Mayor looking forward to working with young people again

"We are also preparing to receive our prestigious Royal Borough status, and we will have to decide on our official crest. People are looking forward to the return in 2012 of the Cutty Sark - a real emblem for the borough, which has been greatly missed. We will also see the opening of new Woolwich Centre development and the move of Ravensbourne College of Design - now called just Ravensbourne - from Bromley to the Greenwich Peninsula. Along with Greenwich University, it means we will have two prestigious higher education institutes in the borough."

Cllr Barwick represents the Woolwich Riverside ward on Greenwich Council. She was elected as a Greenwich councillor for the Lakedale Ward in 1998. She was born and raised in Catford, and moved to Greenwich in 1973.

One of her earliest memories is of "rolling down the hill" in front of the James Wolfe statue in Greenwich Park when she was about three-years-old. She also remembers vividly how she pushed her six-year-old brother into Blackheath pond when she was just four. I got cross because he said I could wade in and bring back his toy sailing boat, and then he changed his mind," she said. "So I pushed him in. The bus conductor on the way home said he couldn't have a seat because he was so wet, and he had to stand all the way."

After qualifying as a teacher, she taught for many years at both primary schools and colleges, with French her main subject. She became actively involved in helping teenagers and worked to set up a Connexions careers and guidance centre in Southwark.

"I have always found it very rewarding to work with young people, and I spent a lot of time working with 14 to 19-year-olds," she said. "When I served as the council's lead member for Europe I did a lot of work with sixth-form students to help them understand our role as Europeans. Having the opportunity as Mayor to raise young people's understanding of my civic role is an extension of that work."

The charities she has chosen to support for the year are the Greenwich Carers Centre, which provides services to carers who either live-in or provide unpaid support to someone who lives in the borough, and the Medical Foundation for the care of Victims of Torture, the only UK organisation dedicated solely to the treatment of torture survivors.

Cllr Barwick also intends to fund raise for Greenwich Starting Blocks, which supports promising local athletes.

Staff make pledge to cycle to work

by Pat Greenwood

ENVIRONMENT-conscious architects have got a breath-taking challenge on their drawing-boards!

Around one in six staff at 'bptw partnership' at Hiltons Wharf on the Greenwich riverside have signed up once again to take part in the London Cycle Challenge throughout this month.

Greenwich Council is supporting local teams of contestants all the way, and the borough is awarding prizes - in addition to those up for grabs from Transport for London (TfL).

The 60-strong architects' firm has a long-term aim to get 'greener' and reduce its carbon footprint.

Keen staff-members have formed a sustainability business planning team - not only looking at the company's approach to design, but also encouraging colleagues to walk or cycle to work, use the office pool-bike to get to appointments, get railway season tickets through a company loan, and even to buy a bike, up to 40 per cent cheaper, through the office's link with a special government scheme.

So - just over a month after taking part in London's 'Walk to Work' event - they're "on their bikes"!

They've logged their team onto the special TfL website, and they're busy collecting achievement-badges for the miles they're clocking up. They're also cycling for possible bike-accessory prizes if they're among the teams

WHERE THERE'S A WHEEL: some of the 60-strong staff at bptw get settled in the saddle across the capital who cover the most ground.

Architect Richard Bayfield revealed to GT that he's hoping to boost his mileage by cycling out to Paris at the end of June!

Samantha Holmes, who is a graphics co-ordinator with the firm, added: "We've formed up into teams within the office, so there's lots of friendly competition!"

Cllr Rajwant Sidhu, the cabinet member for Greener Greenwich, told GT: "Here at Greenwich Council we are doing whatever we can to encourage cycling. For example, we have put in more cycle-bays around both Greenwich and Woolwich, and the council's new Woolwich Centre will have facilities for staff who want to cycle to work."

He added: "It takes time, but we are working with all the different agencies to try to change people's attitudes."

● GREENWICH Council wants to hear from any other firms, as well as families, friends, schools, and community groups who have also signed up to the June 2010 London Cycle Challenge. Just email a screenshot of your cycle challenge profile to greener@greenwich.gov.uk

If you email, your name will go in a draw, and the first 20 will get a bike pack containing bike bells, bike locks, and bike lights, worth about £30 altogether in the shops.

The next 50 out of the hat will each get a pedometer.

(Not open to Council employees).

● For more details visit www.tfl.gov.uk/cyclechallenge and for info about cycling in the borough visit www.greenwich.gov.uk/cycling

DO you have a World War Two story to tell? Perhaps you have an experience of evacuation, air raids, rationing or volunteering for the war effort that you would be willing to share?

The University of Greenwich is launching an oral history project - 'Memories of War: New Narratives and Untold Stories' - to capture untold stories from WW2. Their memories will also be used for a

If you can help please email: memoriesofwar@gre.ac.uk or call 020 8331 7874. You can also write to Dr June Balshaw, at the University of Greenwich, Old Royal Naval College, Park Row, SE10 9LS.

Plans for Olympic park centre

PEOPLE of all ages will be able to discover, explore and be inspired by the environment at a new study centre on the site of the Olympic Park.

Plans for a 150-bed residential centre are being developed as part of a legacy plan for the site.

They're being developed by the Olympic Park Legacy Company and the Field Studies Council. The centre would offer students a chance to get hands-on experience in urban design, building and managing the environment.

Margaret Ford, chairman of the Olympic Park Legacy Company, said: "Education is a key part of our vision to secure a sustainable legacy, and this is an exciting opportunity to explore options for London's first residential centre specialising in the built environment. We are already attracting a great deal of interest in the Olympic Park, helping us to secure a diverse offer that will bring people of all ages and background to the area after the 2012 Games."

The Field Studies Council runs residential education courses for schools. Chairman Tim Burt said: "Our vision is to develop a world-leading residential field centre specialising in outdoor education in the built environment - using the vibrant mix of buildings, spaces and parks to inspire and educate forthcoming generations of young people and their families."

Students learn about jobs in construction

by Dick
Townsend-Smith

AROUND 350 students got some first-hand experience of the construction industry when they went along to a 'Careers in Action' event at the Greenwich Heritage Centre at the Royal Arsenal in Woolwich.

Teams from 20 local construction firms spent two days giving the 13 to 19-year-olds an insight into the different professional routes into the industry to help them with their career decisions for when they leave school.

All the firms taking part are big-hitters in the industry. They included Wates, Mullaley, Rydon, Durkan, Apollo, Lakehouse, Axis and Martin.

The young people, from 14 local schools, each spent two-and-a-half hours hearing about urban planning, design and development, and tried their hands at trades such as brick-laying, carpentry, tiling, joinery and plumbing. They also learned what training is available for different careers in construction, and the different qualifications required for working in the industry.

The event, now in its sixth year, was organised by the Education Business Partnership (EBP), part of Greenwich Council's Directorate of Regeneration, Enterprise and Skills, together with the L&Q housing association.

One of the firms taking part, which liaises closely with the Education Business Partnership, was Durkan, which takes on three apprentices from Greenwich every year out of a total of 10.

Paul McCrae, its community liaison manager, said: "I look after apprentices and work closely with EBP because we want to help young people with their careers as much as we can. I sit on the Board of Governors of the Post-16 Shooters Hill campus, and I've been taking on young people from there as apprentices for several years."

The students GT spoke to said they appreciated the chance to learn more about career options in the industry.

Tamera and Mariam, both 14 and from the Blackheath Bluecoat School, had a go at

DAY ON THE TILES: students have a go at tiling a wall, while others below, trying building a wall brick-laying on the Berkeley Homes stand. When they arrived in the morning, Tamera had aspirations to go into medicine and Mariam was considering going into the performing arts. But they found their visit very interesting as it gave them a different view on the professional side of the construction industry.

Today has opened my eyes to some of the careers available in construction

"We've never done anything like this before, and it's nice to be able to try something different," said Tamera.

Boys from the John Roan School at Blackheath were shown how to put together kitchen units at the stand run by property maintenance company Axis of Thamesmead. Ricky, aged 14, said: "It's still too early to decide what I want to do when I leave school, but being here today has opened my eyes to some of the careers available in construction."

Cllr Denise Hyland, the council's cabinet member for regeneration, enterprise and skills, said: "This event has given the young people the chance to try something different and get some fresh ideas for what they might want to do when they leave school. It is important for students to raise their awareness, not only of the opportunities available, but also of the skills employers are looking for. I would like to thank all the companies who have taken part and generously gave up their time to make it such a success."

Men's Health Week highlights the need to keep active

by Hilary Bryan

FORMER Charlton Athletic goalkeeper Nicky John is helping to kick off a week of events focusing on men and their health.

The goalie will show how easy it is to undergo a health check for the launch of National Men's Health Week which runs from June 13-21.

Nicky will be in the health marquee for the Eltham and Kidbrooke Great Get Together, which runs at the Samuel Montagu Sports Club from 11am to 4pm on June 13.

The marquee has been set up by NHS Greenwich and Greenwich Council to remind residents about the range of health services available to men in the borough.

It will be offering health checks and information about taking care of your health, as well as a sport and physical activity area offering the chance to take part or watch a range of sports including new age curling, cricket, tag rugby, taekwondo, badminton, rowing, cycling and table

NO PAIN BUT GAIN: health staff carry out a blood pressure check as part of a health check at last year's Men's Health Week tennis.

Nicky, who also played for Millwall and QPR, said: "I help with a local adult football team and have recently got into walking with my wife. A couple of years ago I joined the local bowls club. Like most people I had always thought it was easy and not very physically demanding but have been surprised at the amount of walking I do whilst playing."

The health marquee is the first in a series of local events taking place for Men's Health Week, which is part of a national campaign by the Men's Health Forum. This year's theme is sport and physical activity and aims to get men and boys more active. The campaign also aims to make greater use of sports venues for delivering health services and information.

During the week 150 free Wellness memberships, which allow five free visits to a Greenwich leisure centre, will be on offer to men aged 30-59. The offer will run across the whole borough and be distributed on a first come first served basis. Those who take the membership will be able to use the gyms, pools and exercise classes completely free of charge for those five visits.

Details at www.gll.org
 Hilary Guite, the Director of Public Health and Well-being for NHS Greenwich, said: "Improving men's health is a top priority for Greenwich. Much of the ill-health and early death that men in Greenwich experience is entirely preventable."

Cllr Peter Kotz, Greenwich Council's cabinet member for health, adults and older people, said: "There are a worryingly high number of men in Greenwich in poor health that are not making use of the extensive range of services available to them."

"National Men's Health Week presents an opportunity to raise awareness of what's out there and encourage men to start thinking seriously about what they can do to improve their health. I hope everyone takes note of the week and begin to take advantage of all the services on offer to them."

Get Together for free family fun

PERFORMANCES by local children are among the highlights of a Great Get Together in Eltham and Kidbrooke this weekend.

The event at the Samuel Montagu Youth Centre in Broad Walk runs alongside the Kidbrooke Cluster Family Fun Day, an annual event organised by local schools in the area.

The day's entertainment runs from 11am to 4pm on Sunday, June 13 and includes food and craft stalls along with many community and local service information stalls. As well as the live music stage, there'll be have-a-go sports sessions, activity displays and fun demonstrations. Andy Day from CBeebies will make a guest visit and visitors can have their say on local issues in the Talk Cafe. The Eltham event is the first of three free get togethers for residents across the borough. Each GGT will feature the ever-popular Talk Café and council information stalls where residents can learn more about council services and give their feedback. Later in the month the Woolwich GGT will be held alongside the Armed Forces day celebrations at the Royal Artillery Barracks, so visitors can enjoy some spectacular army displays culminating in a performance by the Royal Artillery Band. Visitors can enjoy some spectacular army displays, including The Kings Troop Royal Horse Artillery and the awe-inspiring Royal Artillery Black Knights parachute display team (weather permitting). The event on Saturday, June 26 will include the usual exciting range of free Great Get Together attractions including a variety of sports, martial arts and dance taster sessions, children's bouncy castles and trampolines, farmyard animals, land train and Healthy Living zone. The Woolwich event will also feature food stalls from local traders and a farmers' market. Visitors to the Charlton Great Get Together will also have a chance to browse the stalls of a farmers' market on July 10. The event at Charlton House merges with a performance by the Mbowula South african township. ● Details of Great Get Together events at www.greenwich.gov.uk/gettogether

Sports day triumphs with Kidbrooke youngsters

by Hilary Bryan

PINTSIZED athletes took up the baton for a Mini Sports Day challenge last week.

Scores of youngsters who live on and around Kidbrooke's Ferrier estate joined in a traditional sports day at Sutcliffe Park athletics track.

Last Wednesday's programme included egg and spoon, sack and three-legged races for all ages along with javelin throwing, speed bounces, 100-meter sprints and relay races.

Kidbrooke's Mini Sports Day was organised by the Southern Housing Group to encourage local people to get more involved in sporting activities.

Teams of children aged two to 13 took part in the free event with sports voucher prizes up for grabs.

The challenge is part of the Activate London campaign to promote healthy and active communities. Activate London is funded by the Big Lottery Fund in partnership with six housing associations.

The four-year programme runs projects for all ages focusing on mental and physical well being and healthy eating.

Local youngsters were invited by the housing group which is set to own and manage some of the new homes being created as part of the Kidbrooke regeneration masterplan.

The group's senior community regeneration officer James Rogers explained that the Mini Sports Day was a chance for the housing association to link up with some of the local families who may soon be living in the new homes.

Children from Wingfield, Ealldham, Holy Family and Thomas Tallis schools were invited to the sports event and posters were put up in community organisations and clubs across the area.

"We've had a fantastic turn out and the children are having a really good time and loving it," said James. "The feedback from parents has been really positive - they don't expect a housing association to put on something like this but Southern Housing Group plans to undertake further events and projects in the future."

Locals have been invited to a sports final event at Newham leisure centre in July where they will meet athletes from other boroughs.

Nine-year-old Wingfield pupil Steffan said: "I love the javelin, the throwing and the sack racing and all the sports I liked I've come first. If I wasn't here I'd be playing football or doing taekwondo but I've met other children by doing the races."

£250 in shopping vouchers for your dad

GREENWICH Shopping Park is giving you the chance to win £250 worth of shopping vouchers for your dad to spend at the Park this Father's Day on Sunday, June 20. If your dad's football crazy for the World Cup, then he could buy an official England Shirt from Sports Direct.com or even this trendy Bobby Moore tee from Next (pictured). Or if he's a sensitive soul, why not show him you care with a novelty 'Dad, You're a Legend' mug and coaster set from Next or 'Dad's Army' t-shirt from Burton at Outfit?

For a dad who likes his fashion, treat him to a new outfit from the menswear ranges available from our top fashion retailers, including H&M, River Island, Outfit, Clarks and Next. And, with JD Sports stocking exclusive items of Adidas clothing, he won't have any trouble looking the part for a World Cup inspired kick-around at the local park. Perhaps he'd appreciate some gifts to help him relax, such as the 2010 FIFA World Cup Playstation 3 game from HMV or some luxurious grooming products from Boots? Or maybe he'd prefer Jamie Oliver's current bestseller, 'Jamie does' from WHSmith, or some in-car audio equipment from Maplin to listen to his tunes on the move? And if you're lucky enough to spend the day at Greenwich Shopping Park with your dad on Father's Day, why not treat him to a drink or snack at Costa Coffee in Next. To enter, visit www.greenwichshoppingpark.co.uk click on the Competitions page and answer our simple question. The competition closes at midday on Friday, June 11. T&Cs apply.

by Pat Greenwood

Celebrations for new community centre's official opening

CHILDREN from all over an Eltham estate staged the official opening of their long-awaited community centre on Saturday, May 29.

Now, once final details have been sorted out, the £700,000 'Turning Pages - Across the Ages' building in Nesbit Road is set to fully open to the public later this month.

Mums on the 2,000-home Page Estate originally launched their dream of a centre-for-all-the-family back in 1998.

In the next few weeks, a food-garden will get off the ground.

There are also plans for a creche, for play and stay for under-fives and their parents, and for employment and training advice from GLLaB, the borough's local labour and business scheme.

There will also be space available for hire.

Long-time resident Lee Abbott is a member of PEAP - the Page Estate Action Project - which has campaigned for the centre for 12 years.

She told GT: "Many thanks to everyone who supported our official celebrations on the Bank Holiday. Once we're up and running, we plan to be open from 9am until 9pm in the summer and from 9am until 8pm in the winter."

She added: "We'll be looking for all kinds of volunteers to help us. If you have an idea for a project you'd like to run from the new centre, please pop in and discuss it with us."

Resident Josie Cordaroy, who has lived on the estate for 15 years, has been in the area for over 40 years. She's particularly pleased that older people on the estate have somewhere new to enjoy. "It's so nice that the centre is up and running," she told us.

JUST A SNIP: youngsters gather to officially launch the new Turning Pages community centre aided by a friendly Bobby Mum-of-four Kelly Bampton, who has lived on the estate for two years, said: "It's lovely! Lee and all the team have worked so hard. Hopefully, I'll be able to help out with the garden."

Guests at the opening of the council-funded building included Eltham MP Clive Efford and local Greenwich ward-councillors, along with friends from Lakehouse who built the centre and Pellings the architects, both of whom donated cash towards the celebrations.

Old friends who travelled back for the event included Russ Wilkins from the old Westhorpe Avenue estate-office.

There was a full programme of fun including martial arts displays, face-painting, bingo, and chess. Charlton Athletic FC's community team and Eltham and Kidbrooke's Youth Inclusion Project (the YIP) were there to give their support, as well as chef Rosa Gonçalves from the nearby Ferrier Estate, Greenwich Community College with arts and crafts, and Shooters Hill Post-16 campus who offered hair-cuts and styling.

Lee said: "Saturday, May 29, officially marked the end of Page Estate Action Project - as the 'Turning Pages' centre took over. No doubt, PEAP will emerge once again should there be another 'action project' that needs doing!"

CARE project students' stunning work

YOU hardly need any words. The posters say it all - and so do the faces of the young people who clearly get the point, writes Peter Cordwell.

They're from St Thomas More, Kidbrooke and Plumstead Manor secondary schools and they worked for six weeks with various professionals to explore issues around identity, understanding, culture and community.

The digital images they produced with local photographer Robin Bharaj and graphic designer Tom Law are simply stunning and deserve to be displayed on billboards throughout the borough.

Their eloquence is there for all to see - and it was fitting that the launch should take place at The Valley, home of Charlton Athletic and CARE (Charlton Athletic Race Equality), the partnership between the club and Greenwich Council that in many ways has led the country in promoting cohesion through football.

Charlton chief executive Steve Waggott and CARE'S joint chair Martin Simons were there to cheer the students at the end of week that saw Charlton fail to win promotion through the League One play-offs.

Martin said: "I'm very proud that we have an unrivalled reputation for working in the community. CARE works in partnership with the council and is the only partnership of its kind in the country. We might not be able to compete with Manchester United on the football pitch but we're the Brazil in our community work."

'Cross the Line' aimed to get the students to cross the line not only physically between the different cultures involved in the project. They looked at themselves as individuals and also as students and groups within the wider community.

They all agreed they belonged to one race - the human race - and the other big plus was making new friends from other schools over the six weeks.

Steven Mformba, 13, from Year 8 at St Thomas More, told GT: "The best bit was doing the digital photography. I think the most important part of the six weeks was the teamwork, working together on something so different and interesting."

Schoolmate Lucy Butler, 12, said: "I thought it was very exciting. It's important to inform people about racism because we need to understand other people and respect their cultures."

Greenwich Council's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 188

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Council's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed.

Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to:

For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time.

For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

Band

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the council must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

1 Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, get an application form by phoning the Access and Allocations Section on 020 8921 2941. Or pick up a form from any neighbourhood office.

2 Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Council about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

3 Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.greenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free in either your neighbourhood housing office, library or UK Online centre.

4 Apply in one of two ways

- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Council's website

Multiple viewings are arranged for all advertised properties including those from Registered Social Landlords. This means:

- the top three eligible households who successfully bid and are eligible for a property will be invited to view the property.
- each household will receive a letter giving them an appointment to view the property and telling them their position on the bidding list, ie 1st, 2nd, 3rd (this position is based on the applicant's registration date or date of priority).
- following the viewing, the property will be offered to the highest placed applicant who accepts the property.

If you have any queries regarding multiple viewings you can contact us on 020 8921 2941.

Small is beautiful the Under Occupation scheme

If you are living in a Council property that is too big for you, we can help you to move to somewhere smaller.

The Council will pay your removal costs, and £350 for each bedroom gained.

To join the scheme you must be willing to move to a home with two bedrooms less than you have now:

- 3 bedroom to a 1 bedroom home
- 3 bedroom parlour/4 bedroom to a 1 or 2 bedroom home
- 5 bedroom to a 3 bedroom (or smaller) home

Tips to beat the ticket scammers

A NEW consumer campaign is just the ticket for sport, music and festival fans planning to visit summer events.

Launched by the Office of Fair Trading last month, the 'Just Tick-It' campaign aims to raise consumer awareness of scam ticket websites.

It also offers event goers helpful and practical tips on avoiding being scammed.

The campaign comes at the start of the World Cup and warns British football fans and travellers to overseas music and sporting events to be aware of scam ticketing websites.

Local trading standards officers are also warning Greenwich residents about the dangers of purchasing online tickets for local festivals and events at venues such as The O2.

In the 12 months since June 2009, the council has received 22 complaints about fake tickets and non delivery of tickets.

The campaign is being supported by Consumer Direct, a government-funded agency which offers practical advice on all kinds of consumer issues. It has issued the following tips when buying tickets online:

- Beware of sites selling tickets to events that haven't gone on sale or that guarantee tickets to events that have been sold out for months.

- Put the website name into a search engine like Google to see what you can find out.

- Make sure the company behind the website provides a full street address for their business, not just a Post Office or mail box number. And try its UK landline phone number. Be wary of buying from a site that only gives an email address or mobile phone number.

- Ask for details. What type of seat/ticket are you buying? What is the face value of the ticket? How much is the ticket being sold for, and are there any additional charges? When will the ticket be dispatched and how will you be notified? What happens if things go wrong? What is the company's policy on refunds?

- Pay for tickets by credit card. Under the Consumer Credit Act, your card issuer is jointly liable for the failure to provide goods or services if the cash price of a single ticket is over £100.

- Follow basic advice for safe online shopping. Read the guidance from Get Safe Online.

- If you think you've been a victim of this scam, call Consumer Direct for advice on 08454 04 05 06, you can also get advice or report suspect sites on the Consumer Direct website at www.consumerdirect.gov.uk

House style

The Queen's House gets an unlikely makeover for one night only as part of the The Greenwich Festivals, which start later this month

THE Greenwich Festivals get under way later this month, and kicking off

Greenwich Council's season of events that run until November is Gravity, an open air spectacular laid on as part of The Greenwich and Docklands International Festival on June 24. The show is on in the grounds of the Maritime Museum on Trafalgar Road and is a mixed media display made up of local dancers and a larger-than-life moving projection on to the walls of the Queen's House. The event is free, and Spanish choreographer and director of Gravity, Toni Mira told us: "I've already done something similar with some other buildings and the organisers heard about me and asked me to do it here. They wanted a 'spatial' type of thing and we talked about the gravity, the Greenwich Meridian Line and time - things that happen just here, and so I came up with the idea." Ten dancers will start the show and then be replaced with scale projections that will dance all over the house giving it the effect of a giant doll's house bathed in coloured lights and pictures. "This building is much bigger than the other ones I've used and the sides are nice and flat and white so the projected images should look really clear," added the Catalan choreographer. "When I saw it for the first time I thought it was the perfect building." The theme of The Greenwich and Docklands International Festival (GDIF) this year is 'Earth' - continuing the element theme that was launched last year with 'Water' at its heart. So Gravity is a fitting title then, but it won't be a limiting factor for the projections of the dancers - the 'virtual dancers' as Toni calls them. "The projected dancers are the real size, which means that people who are far from here will think that they are real dancers," he added. Of course, for the projector to take full effect there must be total darkness, and on what is pretty much the longest day of the year, it means kicking off proceedings at 10 o'clock in the evening. "The show starts and finishes with the real dancers - and the virtual ones in between. It's about 25 minutes in total," Toni added. And there will be a bombastic send off for the troupe with a massive pyrotechnics display. The grounds of the Queen's House will be open to the public on the night, and although any outdoor show is at the mercy of the weather, Toni is confident that the earth theme to proceedings this year will keep the water at bay. "It will be a fine night, and the moon will not be too bright, I hope. I'm from Spain so I try to take the weather with me wherever I go!" he said. ● The Greenwich Festivals is one of the ways Greenwich will be making its exciting and distinctive contribution to the Cultural Olympiad and will provide some of the best and most varied entertainment in the capital. GDIF together with the Greenwich Film Festival, Comedy Festival and Greenwich Jazz will form The Greenwich Festivals. There are also two special events in 2012, a contribution to the national Big Dance and Summer Sessions, a four-day music festival.

DANCING THE NIGHT AWAY: the troupe of local dancers takes a break from their gruelling schedule, and inset, some of the projections on the House

Playing party pieces...

THERE is an evening of words and music, classical and cabaret as a selection of virtuosos play their party pieces later this month. Party Pieces 2010 - Summer's Joy is on at The Trafalgar Tavern on June 21. There are soloists, ensembles and choruses conducted by Elinor Corp at the night laid on by the Centenary Theatre Company in aid of the charity Emmaus, which is celebrating its 60th anniversary. And to raise funds for its shows, the company presents its annual Party Pieces concert and cabaret back in Greenwich this year by popular demand. Proceedings get underway at 8pm on the Monday night upstairs in the Nelson Room at the boozier on Park Row, down by the river. And the concert will be a taster for the company's staging of Patience at Greenwich Theatre in November. Founder of the company, Celia Moreton-Prichard, will be the MC for the evening, providing witty links and hearty banter. Doors open at 7.30pm with seating at tables of 10. Book early for the evening - tickets at £12 a head are available in advance: 07970 866 034, or on the door on the night.

FINAL SCENE

Apple of its iPad

The computer giant's new piece of kit has been making waves across the globe, and Scene's tech-head Alex Brooks was at the front of the queue for its UK release.

APPLE'S latest innovation, the iPad was released to our friends over the pond at the start of April, and now the UK and another eight countries around the world have the opportunity to pick one up. So what is an iPad and why all the hype? At first glance it looks a lot like an enlarged iPhone or iPod touch, but appearances can be deceptive and there is certainly more to it than that. In typical Apple fashion, the device is a beautiful piece of kit. Measuring a handy 19cm by 25cm in size, the front is an expanse of glass with a single button, while the rear is made of one piece of polished aluminium adorned with a large Apple logo in the middle. The sides contain just a few buttons to turn it on and off, lock the screen orientation and adjust the speaker volume. It's not easy to compare the iPad to any other kind of hardware available – it's too small and lacking features to be a full-on desktop or netbook, and relies on another computer to get it set up and running. And it's no

IWISH I HAD ONE: the hand held device is incredibly versatile, and is easy on the eye too

'netbook', either, with their cramped keyboards, poor build quality and awful displays. But with a base price of £429, to many consumers it looks like Apple is trying to hit that netbook market right in the nose. Load it up with video, music and reading material, and you'll have a fantastic time. The 9.7-inch display is super bright and has viewing angles like no device ever made before, colours are vivid and the super shiny glass gives a beautiful feel to photos and high-definition movies.

You can also download three apps from the iPod App Store to enable you to use Pages (Word), Numbers (Excel) and Keynote (Powerpoint). Of course the iPad has its fair share of problems too. The operating system is basically an expanded version of that which runs on the iPhone, and doesn't allow apps to run in the background. Worse still, the iPad is almost useless in a very bright environment. Trying to read a book purchased from the built-in eBook store was practically impossible in direct sunlight - the super shiny glass front merely acts as a mirror. On the plus side the iPad comes in two flavours – a Wi-Fi only version, and a Wi-Fi + 3G version. The latter comes equipped with a micro-SIM card from a mobile carrier of your choice and will allow access to the internet anywhere for a monthly charge, while the former requires a Wi-Fi signal for access to the internet. Further options for picky or cash-strapped consumers include memory capacities of 16, 32 and 64GB - with the larger allowing for that bit more valuable media storage. If you get the chance, I highly recommend you hop on over to your nearest Apple store, Currys, Dixons, or PC World to check out the iPad for yourself. You'll be immediately struck by its speed and how natural tasks like surfing the web feel different when being manipulated with just your fingers.

AB
iPad is in stores now. Prices range from £429 for the 16GB model, to £699 for the 64GB Wi-Fi + 3G option.

The streets are the stage

AT last – a British dance movie with an all British cast. And Streetdance 3D may well be Britain's answer to Hollywood's High School Musical. Starring Flawless of Britain's Got Talent fame as a street dance crew, the "Surge", it also has cameos from both Diversity, and George Sansom, both former winners of the ITV talent show. It's the tale of an unlikely alliance: Two dance groups – a street dance crew and a ballet troupe, who are forced to work together in order to enter the UK Street Dancing Finals. Although charming at times, the story itself is fairly predictable and unremarkable: Though initially reluctant, the two groups gradually come together of their own accord, each recognising the skill and grace of the other's chosen discipline and in the process put together some truly stunning sequences. Character development is not surprisingly, subordinated to these highly polished, well drilled and very precise routines, with Charlotte Rampling imaginatively cast as the ballet troupe's visionary dance instructor. But apart from Rampling and a short, but well executed cameo from Sansom, the characters remain one-dimensional, distant and therefore, disappointingly unengaging. The dancing itself, however, is outstanding, and more than makes up for any deficiencies in characterisation or plot. Any question marks over the potential choreographical limitations of street dancing are firmly dismissed by some imaginative and innovative routines, the dance "war" in the nightclub between Surge and Diversity, particularly impressive. Slick and clean, like an army at drill, their commitment to practise and dedication to perfection is plain to see. Co-Directors Max Giwa and Dania Pasquini marshal their forces with no little skill, a soundtrack written and performed by urban acts including N-Dubz, Lightbulb Thieves and our own Cheryl Cole, clever camera work and a delicate balance between dialogue and dance.

Verdict:
Enjoyable and entertaining within the relative confines of its subject matter. 7/10

Bluetones make slight return

BRITPOP quartet, the Bluetones, enjoyed a blistering start to their career with no less than three fanzines dedicated to them before they'd even released their third single, 'Slight Return'.

It was to be their biggest hit, reaching number 2 on the UK singles chart. Their debut album, 'Expecting to Fly' – named after a classic Buffalo Springfield song – reached number 1 in the UK album charts in February 1996. 'Return to the Last Chance Saloon' and 'Science and Nature' followed and helped further establish a dedicated following.

A New Athens is the Bluetones' sixth studio album and was produced by Gordon Mills. It features guest appearances from Imogen Andrews, ex-Mohair keyboard whizzkid, Alex Richards and perhaps more surprising, television actor Matt Berry (The IT Crowd, Snuffbox, The Mighty Boosh) who provides backing vocals and enthusiastic handclaps on two of the record's 11 tracks. The record itself, though filled to the brim with the band's trademark ear for melody and left-field harmonies, does mark something of a sonic departure. As a whole, the album is perhaps darker sounding than anything they have released before, yet at the same time there is a definite air of playfulness within the tracks. It's as if the band are more comfortable with themselves and their craft than they have been before.

England beat Brazil AND win the 'World Cup'

the country of their roots, has been a truly wonderful experience for all the spectators as well as the players.

"Countries included Colombia, Sierra Leone, Iraq, Somalia and Afghanistan - and how much better to see countries from all over the world competing on the football field."

Ghana lost the game of three penalties to England as Iran jubilantly celebrated a tense penalty shoot-out victory over Colombia.

Ghana's player-manager David Tamakloe, who lives in Charlton, was hobbling round the touchlines on Sunday after sustaining a foot injury on the Saturday.

David, a law student at Holborn College, said: "We played in the group stages with Kuwait, Morocco and Greece. I got involved after reading about the tournament in Greenwich Time. We love football so much and thought it was a good idea to get us all together again.

"Most of our players live in the borough but some come from Croydon. They are mostly students. I think the tournament is a good idea. It's like bringing the whole world together. The spirit is fantastic. Yesterday we were beating the drum on the touchline!"

Traditional food from around the world was available, including Oodles of Noodles, and the venue - with turf, like everywhere else, better than Wembley's - would be great for an annual event, especially with the London Olympics just over two years away.

Charlton Ladies were victorious in the Aphrodite Cup and Charlton's team won the disability tournament too to make it a great weekend for the team from the Valley.

In the youth tournament Redbridge United defeated Maiden Youth and Teviot Rangers to win the tournament.

World Cup Sweepstake to raise cash for Demelza

SO is it finally going to be England's year again? Or will Spain and Brazil have too much for Capello's men?

With football's greatest tournament just round the corner, now is the time to get involved in the Romax World Cup Sweepstake.

The local distribution company have organised the sweepstake to help raise £25,000 for the Demelza charity.

Demelza provides hospice care for over 600 children with life-limiting illnesses and their families across East Sussex, Kent and SE London. Romax are proud to sponsor Demelza House and the World Cup Sweepstake is just one of the ways they are raising money.

By organising a sweepstake among your friends and colleagues you can help. A £2 entry is recommended, with £50 going to the winner and £14 donated to Demelza, who would be grateful for donations to be pledged via www.justgiving.com/romax-demelza.

See the pull-out in this Greenwich Time for full details.

Natalie Tegg, of Romax, told GT: "Demelza provides a lifeline to many families across the south east who rely on us to help take some of the strain of caring for a life limited child".

Romax director Robin Summer is also busy training for a cross-channel swim to bolster Demelza's coffers.

England win the (Inner City) World Cup!

Thirty-two 'countries' compete in Greenwich for prestigious trophy

by Peter Cordwell

YOU walk into Charlton Park and the first game you see is between Iran and Columbia, played at breakneck speed and with incredible enthusiasm.

On the next pitch, England are playing Ghana in another match to sort out who qualifies for the knock-out stages of the Inner City World Cup - part of the two-day Lovefootball Festival - played in Greenwich for the first time.

Fast forward a few hours and you've got the team in the final that most people are wishing for in the real thing in Johannesburg on Sunday, July 11...England!

And the right result...a 3-0 victory over Bolivia!

The beaten finalists in Charlton Park - Bolivia - won't be represented in South Africa - but England certainly will be and the omens are looking good!

Unlike Mr Capello, England manager Steve Rice was called in at the last moment by his son, who organised the team.

He told GT: "The players know each other as coaches or players in semi-pro football because the standard of this competition is pretty high. It's a well organised competition and we're delighted to win it. Let's hope it's an omen for South Africa."

"We beat Brazil in the early round so that's enough good signal hopefully. It was an absolute thriller, 4-3, so it might be an exciting World Cup as well!"

England beat Thailand 7-2 but lost 2-1 to Ethiopia. Their 2-1 victory over Ghana - a tale of three penalties - saw them through to the crucial knock-out stages and eventually to the final.

Trophies were presented by Cllr John Fahy, the council's cabinet member for culture and the Olympics, who told GT: "This has been a fabulous event. Seeing 32 teams, mostly made up of ex-pat and second generation players representing
